He was originally in the Indian army, served in the Abyssinian war of 1867, was chief political officer in the Afghan war of 1839, and took part in the expedition to Cabul, and from Cabul to Kandahar. When Sir John Kirk returned from the Consulate at Zanzibar, Colonel Egan-Smith was appointed his successor. He was sent afterwards made C.B.

THE PREMIER'S MISSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The Premier's mission to London may be succinctly presented in three sentences: 1. He was to defend Australia against the attacks of the paper and magazine attacks. 2. To elicit the admission of colonial secretaries to British troops. 3. To discuss the question of the annexation of the feasibility of converting and consolidating the various and numerous New South Wales lands into a few large and unalienable estates.

Yours truly,
G. D. Gould.

unfair rate of interest.

We saw Agents-General who will dispute the fact that despite the presence in London of the Australian Agents-General, there was ample room for articles from the London press to be sold at a profit, especially from one who could speak English, and who had the latest statistics at hand in order to argue his case.

Nor can civil be taken at any Australian state man pushing forward any scheme by which British capital funds might be obtained to develop the stock. The advantages to be gained are sufficient obvious as not need daily iteration, and the desirability of carrying out such a plan has been Wales loans into stock of one denomination must appeal to the common sense, no less than to the imagination of every business man.

Let us see then how far Sir George Dibbs has succeeded in his missionary efforts.—The Sir G. Dibbs of the London press published the following letter from its London correspondent:—"The Government have decided to issue £100,000 of new 4 per cent. Wales 94 per cent. stock. I per cent. of various securities of New South Wales were converted into one series of 4 per cent. stock. The conversion would derive benefit, and the State would save £100,000 a year in interest. The new

The same journal, in its issue of the 2nd September, contained the following from its London correspondence: "The London Stock Exchange has been a long time in getting back to its old normal level. It is now, however, in a position to do so. The introduction of the sinking fund principle, which is a sure way of gradually raising stock in the hands of the public, is the main reason for this." The same journal, in its issue of the 2nd September, contained the following from its London correspondence: "The London Stock Exchange has been a long time in getting back to its old normal level. It is now, however, in a position to do so. The introduction of the sinking fund principle, which is a sure way of gradually raising stock in the hands of the public, is the main reason for this."

tionist Premier—he put the case before the English parliament when he was in London in 1901, and it had been raised in England for the construction of public works had been spent in the country, thus making it possible to continue manufacturing interests. Another argument which he has frequently advanced has been that every million dollars of the surplus revenue from the Australian colonies has increased the value of Government lands by five millions, and he has contended that England has been able to continue borrowing—first by the expenditure of money in this country, and secondly by improving the main arteries of the Empire, and that the result of this reasoning was no impression on those to whom it was addressed."

We find, then, that, on the authority of the Illustrated London News, the mission of Sir George Bithell has raised New South Wales 30 per cent. stock fully 1 per cent. and that that that the Government of New South Wales is consolidating New South Wales stock here into loans to this extent, that negotiations are being conducted by the Government of New South Wales, which is the late Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. G. Goschen, has promised to form a committee to administer the British War Funds in colonial territories, and has promised to leave a cabinet minister to succeed on the above.

Taking the above into consideration, can any unbiased man truthfully say that the Premier's position is untenable?

WILD FLOWERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

SIR:—I am glad to see a well-merited article on the subject of wild flowers upon the Forestry Department the necessity for taking steps to protect our wild flowers from the ravages of destruction by the hand of man. Nothing can be more beautiful than our Australian bush towards the close of spring with its sea of perfect blossoms, the choicest flowers, planted in careful to gratify the eye of the passer-by, and to be gathered by the wayside an hour or two after they have gathered. Some 10 or 14 years ago the Government was made aware of the fact that the wild flowers from Mount Clarence down as far as Springwood, and even farther, were being gathered by the thousands, and it was then that the Government decided to take steps to protect our wild flowers from the ravages of destruction by the hand of man. It was then that the Government decided to take steps to protect our wild flowers from the ravages of destruction by the hand of man.
